

Women from all backgrounds find success through WIT Saudi Arabia

Naiwa, a struggling mother of three daughters, looks towards the future with trepidation. How will she cover the costs of educating her daughters? Each girl has the drive and ambition, the only roadblock is affording the education that allows them to reach their maximum potential. Naiwa works as a maid at Saudi Arabia's Effat University, where she was introduced to the WIT program. Here she found a solution, a program that answers the needs of her family. She enrolled her daughters in WIT where they excelled and are now competitive entrants into the job market.

WIT has gained a reputation for opening the doors that were previously closed, allowing women from less privileged backgrounds to pursue an education so they can take control of their situations. With the WIT program, many women are, for the first time, given the opportunity to advance in their careers. With the skills learned through WIT, many janitors, receptionists, and maintenance workers are able to secure promotions or move into more desirable sectors. The training from WIT provides these women with skills to prepare for the challenges they will meet in the future.

Najwa is just one of hundreds of women who felt anxiety and fear as she wondered what place her family would have in such an advanced technological age. With the help of the WIT program, she knows that her daughters are prepared to meet their future with success.
